Man is a Failure When—

He has no confidence in himself or in his fellowman.

He values success more than character and self-respect.

He does not try to make his work a little better each day.

He tries to rule others by bullying instead of by example.

He loves his own plans and interests more than humanity.

His friends like him for what he has more than for what he is.

He is so busy that he has no time for smiles or cheering words.

He values wealth above health, self-respect and the good opinion of others.

He lets the day go by without making someone happier and more comfortable.

He is so burdened by his business that he finds no time for rest and recreation.

He becomes so absorbed in his work that he cannot see that life is greater than work.

He does not care what happens to his neighbors or his friends so long as he is prosperous.

Have You Seen It?

A motto you will see hanging on the wall occasionally, reads something like this:

"Get while the getting is good."

Lots to that, young man. It means you. You may not see the point today, but you will in our tomorrows. It means that while you are young and husky, and the sun is high in the heavens, you want to get busy and prepare for the rainy day. It means that you should not stand around on the street smoking a pipe and looting away the golden hours. It means that in the summer time of youth is when the harvest occurs, and you want to be on hand to gather in the sheaves. It means that if you start in time, before the sun is red in the west, that there will be plenty doing for you.

The getting is good in the morning of life, when bone and muscle are hard, and head and eye are clear. But the getting gets harder as the years roll by. After awhile the time will come for you when the other fellows will do all the getting. You will be out of the running.

So, as you wander along down the flower-lined pathway of life, you want to always remember that darkness is coming on, when it will be all-fired hard to make any headway with the harvest.

In other words, you want to get while the getting is good.

A Carlyle View.

Carlyle compared the advance of the world to the progress of some drunken man who, reeling from one side of the street to the other, slowly and at the expense of much wasted effort finally arrives at his destination.

Knife Duels in Mexico.

A duel between cattle herders on the Mexican plains is about as savage and deadly a manner of fighting as one could possibly imagine. Each opponent extends his left arm, and a third party who has been selected to act as referee binds their wrists together with a thong of rawhide. He then places a knife in the right hand of each, and the fight is on. Needless to say, it does not last long. Every stab may be calculated upon to do damage, and it often happens that both duellists receive fatal wounds. Yet, in spite of the severe rules of the game, there are men who become experts and terrorize a whole neighborhood. They pride themselves on being able to strike so quickly and so surely that they can kill an opponent with the first blow and get away unscathed.—Exchange.

Two Thumbed Gloves.

In so cold a climate as that of Iceland the glove must be put off or on as rapidly and easily as possible, so it is made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left all gloves have two thumbs. You simply thrust your hand into the first glove that comes and your thumb immediately finds its way. There are, of course, drawbacks in the matter of appearance, for the dangling idle thumb looks untidy.—London Chronicle.
